

THE HYMNS OF PRAISE

MUSICAL FEATURES OF CHRISTMAS SERVICES IN OUR CHURCHES.

THE PROGRAMMES VERY ELABORATE.

Personnel of the Choirs—Hard Work Has Been Done, and the Results Will Show a Marked Improvement Over Former Years.

The joyful and brilliant season of Christmas will receive fitting recognition in the churches of this city. The old-time economy and simplicity is past today, and a new life has been breathed into the choir, many of which are composed of thorough musicians and directed by men who are rich in technical knowledge, and who throw into the scale fine taste and thorough understanding, with the result that the elaborate musical services are an important and interesting feature of the celebration of the day.

Time rolls on without rest or pause, and in time heart and mind change—so runs the world away. The same restless spirit has attacked our church music. Many aesthetic writers have committed the mistake of categorizing the styles and forms of music, as they take them to be, indifferent to the fact that music, in certain of these instances, would fail to exhibit (away from the attached art) the supposed distinction. Generally considered, this mistake lies at the bottom of many false appreciations of the art. We speak, for instance, of the "musical of the ancients," or of this or that "period," and make our evaluations of the same without sufficiently noting the relative share of poetry or any other accompanying art in the total result. Studied grammatically, the music is the same in either case; but studied aesthetically, it makes all the difference in the world.

The past year has witnessed many changes in the personnel of the choir and in the organ loft. This fact is significant, and the programmes that come from these churches bring forcibly to mind a familiar adage which it is not necessary to quote.

For weeks past the choir have been hard at work, and the results of their labors will, it is safe to predict, be pleasantly heard on Christmas-Day and on the Sunday following.

In the Catholic and Episcopal churches the festival will be celebrated next Saturday; the other denominations will hold their special services on Sunday, the 26th.

Following are the programmes that will be given in some of the churches, together with the personnel of the choir:

Catholic Churches.
The Cathedral choir has been rehearsing Neumann's celebrated mass in F for some time past. This mass was composed to be sung at the Cathedral of the Church of the Transfiguration, Brooklyn, N. Y., and is replete with solo gems and brilliant choruses.
